Dykesmain House is a traditional detached property which was a former farmhouse with flexible family accommodation. This lovely home has period features along with private good sized garden grounds in this popular Saltcoats address. The town provides many local amenities with primary schooling close by.

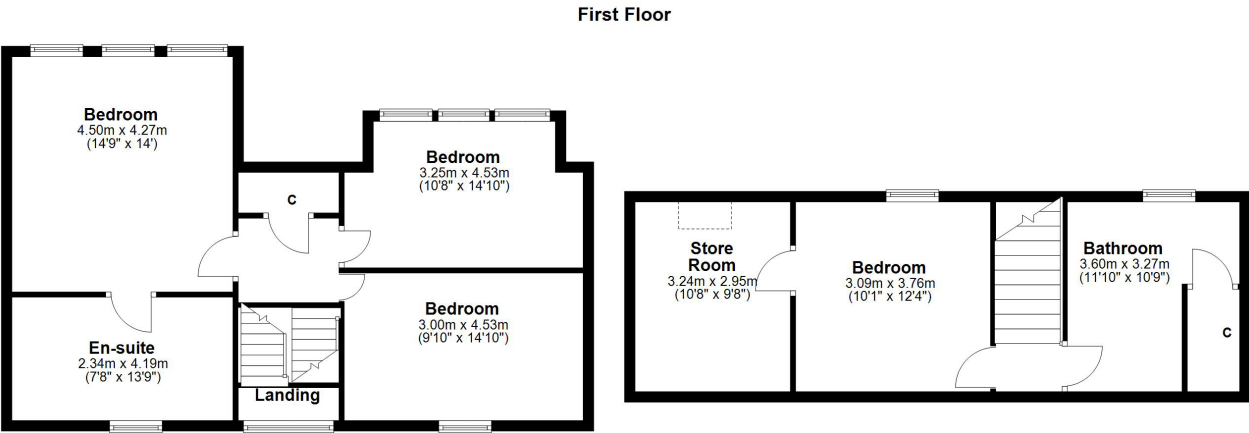

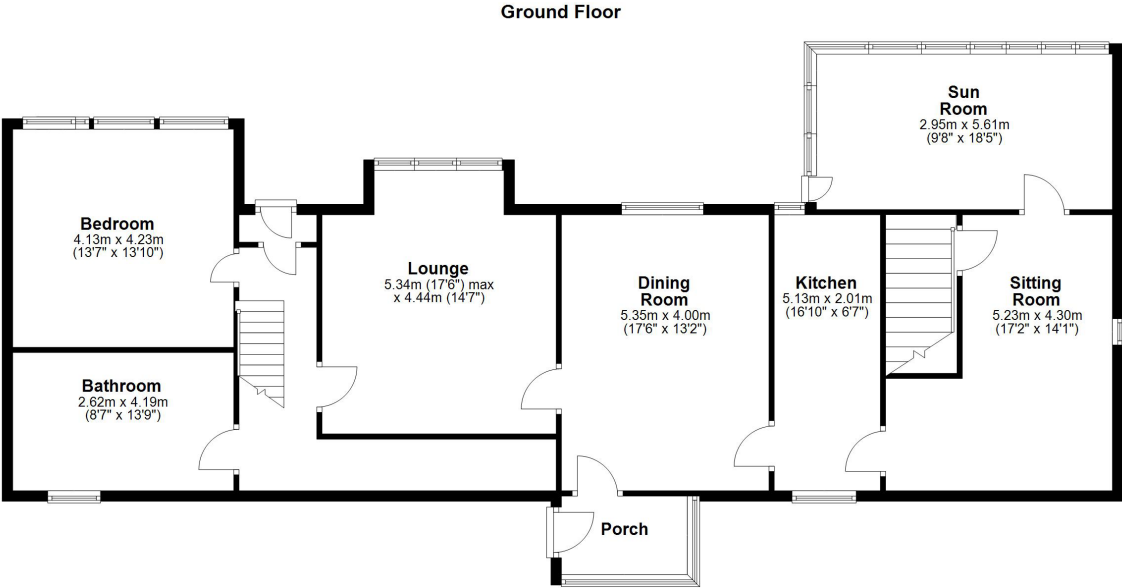

A traditional home with many period features which is in the popular North Ayrshire town of Saltcoats and provides flexible accommodation. This detached property is a period farmhouse in a popular address with access to the local schooling.

The excellent accommodation on offer extends to the entrance porch, which leads into the dining room — a great space for formal or sociable dining. The lounge features a bay window with views over the private garden grounds and retains one of the property's original fire surrounds and window encasements, adding character and charm. Further accommodation includes a double bedroom, a great-sized family bathroom, a modern fitted kitchen, a sitting room, and a sunroom. There is stair access from the sitting room to part of the upper floor with a bathroom, double bedroom and large storeroom. The main bedrooms are accessed from the main hallway via the staircase to the upper hallway to give three double bedrooms, master bedroom with en-suite bathroom. The property has gas central heating and double glazing. There are wonderful private garden grounds to the rear of the property along with a private driveway and garage. Early viewing is highly recommended to appreciate the accommodation and location on offer.

Saltcoats and neighbouring Stevenston and Ardrossan offer a range of amenities, recreational facilities and good travel links to Glasgow via bus, train and the upgraded road network. There are a number of primary and secondary schools serving the area.
